DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: page 6, line 17, “..” Should be ---. Appropriate correction is required.

Response to Amendment

2. The amendment filed 8/19/03 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132 because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132 states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: There is no support in the specification for the first plane of material having a void therein and having a portion of the core exposed through the void. Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
4. Claims 1,3,13,15,18 and 19 stands rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent #3,978,614 to GOLDHABER in view of US Patent # 5,098,790 to DIEMUNSCH et al. In reference to claims 1 and 13, GOLDHABER discloses the use of a window covering (10), column 4, line s 20-23, including a core material (22,222) and a stile

Art Unit: 3635

(24,220) having a first side (32) generally parallel to a second side (34); wherein the first (32) and second (34) sides, contact the respective sides of the core material (22,222). The stile (24,220) also has at least one hinge (207) attached thereto. GOLDHABER discloses the basic claimed device except for including a first and second plane of material positioned on either side of the core. DIEMUNSCH et al. teaches that it is known in the art to form a panel from a first plane of material (1) and a second plane of material (3) having a core (2) disposed therebetween; wherein the core material is a polycarbonate. Thus, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the cover of GOLDHABER with the multilayered panel of DIEMUNSCH et al. in order to create a cover that is durable, light weight, and that is also UV absorbent. In reference to claim 3, the stile (24,220) is linear. In reference to claim 15, the first plane of material (1) and the second plane of material (3) of DIEMUNSCH et al. each contact the center core (2). Regarding claim 18, inherently either the first plane (1) or the second plane (3) of material of GOLDHABER, as modified by DIEMUNSCH et al., are capable of being the exterior of the window covering (10). DIEMUNSCH et al. is merely concerned with UV protection, hence both the first (1) and second (3) planes of material are virtually the same. Hence, the position of the panel of DIEMUNSCH et al. is not a critical aspect of the panel of DIEMUNSCH et al. Therefore, the positioning thereof would be a matter of obvious design choice.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 7,9,11,16,17 and 19 remain as being objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
6. Claim 5,20 and 21 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
7. Claims 2,4,6,8,10 and 12 remain as being allowed.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-13 and 15-19 have been considered but are moot in view of the revised ground(s) of rejection.
9. Applicant's arguments filed 8/19/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that DIEMUNSCH et al. is not intended for use as a projectile resisting member, but rather to resist UV rays, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In a claim drawn to a process of making, the intended use must result in a manipulative difference as compared to the prior art.

Art Unit: 3635

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., the window covering being resistant to projectiles) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims.
